Knotted Cords

Make Noisy Lines

The cloth-covered cord which connects your telephone instrument with the bell box and the cord running to the telephone receiver are each made up of a number of fine wires covered with light insulation. If these cords were not made in this way they would not be flexible. They are necessarily delicate and easily put out of order by misuse.

Subscribers are requested to avoid twisting and knotting the telephone cords as this wears through the insulation, breaks the fine wires and causes short circuits. The first effect is usually a scratching noise in the receiver and later the telephone is put out of service entirely.

ILLINOIS STATE NEWS

Springfield.—Tornadoes and floods of the past week took a toll of upwards of fifteen lives in this state and did millions of dollars' worth of damage. Hundreds of homes and buildings were totally destroyed, as were thousands of acres of crops. The death toll was greatest in central Illinois. The villages of Irvington and Plainfield, not far from Centralia, were badly wrecked. Other fatalities in this state were in small rural communities. Red Cross and other aid was provided in the stricken localities along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. Accompanied by rains which sent streams, already swollen, coursing far beyond their usual channels, the storm brought added suffering and inconvenience to some communities which for several days had been affected by flood conditions. A drop in the temperature to below the seasonal normal added to the discomfort of families, whose homes had been destroyed by wind or made uninhabitable by flood, and forced many to live in tents or improvised shelter.

Springfield.—Engineers, pumpmen, firemen and all other men necessary to the protection of mining property are instructed to remain at their posts as long as coal operators do not violate the terms of agreement between miners and operators, according to a bulletin sent out by Frank Farrington, president of District No. 12, United Mine Workers of America, to officers and members of the order in this state. Rules made by the district executive board in regard to this work are explained in the bulletin. Coal companies shall be allowed to have all the men they require to do repair and extension work, the district executive board has decided, provided the operators agree to pay the wages specified in the agreement terminating March 31, and do not mine coal for sale. A violation of the rules at one mine will warrant the withdrawal of miners from other mines operated by the same company, the bulletin says.

Springfield.—The code of the Illinois state highway patrol has been formulated. Although only a few patrol officers have been appointed and the system authorized by the Fifty-second general assembly has not been placed in operation, rules for the officers' have been laid down by the division of highway and sent to the men who form the nucleus of the state force. The orders require all officers to report daily to their chief, John M. Stack, at Kankakee. The Illinois highway patrol is not a force for general police duties. The rules specifically instruct each officer to confine his activities to enforcement of the motor vehicle laws.

Springfield.—Corn is still king in Sangamon county. In the Illinois crop report, put out by the department of agriculture for 1921, the production of this staple crop in the county is listed at 6,300,064 bushels, valued at harvesting time last fall at $3,150,032. This is three times the value of the oat or the hay crop, according to the report. The value of the six principal crops of the county, corn, wheat, oats, rye, hay and potatoes at harvesting time last year, is estimated at $6,576,328. The valuation is made by taking the market value of these crops at harvesting time from a list of the Sangamon county farm bureau.

Springfield.—With the coal strike in its third week, a survey of the state indicates that the larger public utility companies generally are well supplied with coal, although the small independent companies were expected to suffer, should the strike continue for a long period. Two hundred towns supplied by the Central Illinois Public Service company have an average of 90 days' supply on hand, and the vice president of that concern stated that other large companies were similarly situated. These towns are connected by transmission line, and so are not dependent upon coal for light.

Springfield.—Fining of doctors who fail to record births is continuing in the state, in furtherance of the campaign started several weeks ago by the state department of public health to bring the birth statistics up to the standard required for admittance into the United States birth registration area. Several doctors have had to pay fines recently for neglecting to report births, the department says. In each case the complaint was brought by state's attorneys at the request of field agents of the state health department. Several other prosecutions for the same offense are pending.

Springfield.—Percy B. Coffin of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois tax commission, in a statement said that Cook county is the worst offender in failing to turn in just valuation on personal property. The statement was made in connection with a letter sent by the commission to William H. Weber of the Cook county board of assessors urging a more equitable assessment of personal property. Copies of the letter were sent also to the taxing officials of all counties of the state.

Chicago.—Detachments of the army of workers that the citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award has been recruiting in other cities in anticipation of a Chicago building boom are arriving. It is estimated that 5,000 building mechanics will be given work. That the committee's faith in the revival of the building industry was not misplaced is evidenced by reports of 20 of the largest building material dealers, submitted to the Chicago Association of Credit Men. The reports also showed that total sales increased an average of 42 per cent.
